

Summary: This week I finalized the idea for my sight. I was fairly busy finishing the CS Fair projects but was able to put aside about 2 hours to begin working on the story board and spec doc for this project.

Goals: My goal this week was to expand on my idea for this site and begin to think about how I could accomplish this. Another goal this week was to create a story board and to begin the spec doc.

Problems: Only problem I encountered this week was time. I was focused on finishing the other project I am working on so was not able to work on this project as much as I would have liked.

| Time Log:                            |                          |   |              |
|--------------------------------------|--------------------------|---|--------------|
| Estimated Time to complete project → |                          |   | 200Hours |
| Date                                 | Time Spent(in hours) | Description                                 | Author       |
| 3/26/17                              | 2                        | Brainstorming website ideas                 | Eric Langdon |
| 4/2/17                               | 2                        | Started working on spec doc and story board | Eric Langdon |
|                                      |                          |   |              |

* Since I am working alone, I am responsible for all the positions for the creation of this website. *